DIPPING VAT AND YARDS.

Construction Work Is Progressing Rapidly and Within a Short Time Vat Will Be in Operation.

Work on the dipping vat and stock yards of the San Angelo Dipping Vat and Stock Yards Co. is progressing nicely. Through the courtesy of Mr. J. B. Murrah, of the board of directors of the company, a representative of The Press was shown through the yards last Friday afternoon, in fact he was taken bodily away from the hum and buzz of busy San Angelo, transported to the scene of operations and told to behold.

August Pahl was overseeing the work. Ten or twelve men were employed digging post holes for the high cedar posts which are to surround the yards. Ballasting was going on as the flint rock foundations to the soil at the stock pens render the use of crowbar and pick impossible. Strata after strata of this hard stone is found under the soil and the men who were digging the vat proper could only do so by means of drill and dynamite. Teams and scrapers were at work, men were tamping posts, and everything was energy.

The vat is being constructed at the southwest corner of the Santa Fe Stock pens. Infected cattle will first be driven into the old pens. A few will be cut out into a pen closely adjacent to the vat. Then one at a time they will go down a narrow passage through the vat filled with oil and out into another pen. The vat is barely 3 ft. wide when completed and at its side is a storage tank which will contain a car of oil. This oil will be fed into the tank from cars on the side track by means of iron pipes. After the cattle have emerged from the vat they will be held for a short while in a pen, the floor of which is composed of concrete. This floor is so constructed that all waste oil will be conveyed to a small tank at one corner of the pen and thence pumped back into the storage tank for further use. So that there will be practically no waste as the oil which remains with the cow cannot be termed as waste. After passing through what might be termed the dipping pen the cattle will then be turned into another series of pens where they will be held the time necessary to comply with the regulations and from there loaded into cars for shipment.

With the dipping vat thus established the next thing is to make San Angelo a cattle market. It can be done despite the belief of some of the doubting Thomases in the contrary. The cattle buyer can be induced to come here to get what he wants just as easily as the stockman can take his stock to market and not get what he wants. There is a tendency among some of the stockmen to "cut out" the territory feature of their business and sell here. This tendency seems to be growing and should it do so the making of San Angelo a cattle market will be only a matter of a short time.

At any rate help along the idea. It will do San Angelo good and whatever does your city good will do you good. It's not altogether philanthropy, or civic pride either for that matter, which should prompt a small effort upon your part in this direction. It may bring a few dollars into your cash drawer in the long run. So help push it along,—it's a good thing.

Letter to W. A. Guthrie.

San Angelo.

Dear Sir: "Three-quarter paint" is a good phrase for the best outside of Devos. Devos is the standard; mark it 100. The next best—there are several not far apart—are three-quarter paints; you may mark them 75 to Devos's 100.

The bulk of the paints in market are 40 or 50 or 60; a few are better than 60; a few are worse than 40.

How do they act? They cover from one to three-quarters as much as Devos; and they last from one to three-quarters as long as Devos.

What are they worth? The same rule don't hold: it costs more to put on some paints than they are worth; they are not worth anything; the "put-on" costs two are three times as much as the paint.

Yours truly

Clarence Webb Writes of President Roosevelt's Visit to San Antonio.

The following is an extract from a letter received by Geo. E. Webb, president of the First National Bank, from his son, Clarence, attending the West Texas Military Academy at San Antonio. He says:

Last Friday President Roosevelt was in San Antonio and he came up to the Post (Fort Sam Houston) and reviewed the troops, they fired 21 guns which is the President's salute, and all the soldiers and officers were in full dress uniforms.

We were requested by the General in command of the Post to act as guards to keep the people off the parade ground. We marched over there in our regular companies. We had about 100 boys in full uniform and were stationed by the gate by which the President passed to leave the Post and when he passed we presented arms and he arose in his carriage and bowed to us and took off his hat to our flag. It certainly did look fine. He was given a dinner at the Menger hotel which cost $12.50 per plate and you had to have a special invitation and a dress suit to go. Well I guess I will close, with much love to all.

Your loving son,
CLARENCE.

Stabbed by Postal Clerk.

Texarkana, Ark., April 12.—J. D. Huey, a young white man, was stabbed at 5 a. m. today, by C. H. Johnson, a negro mail clerk on the Kansas City Southern, running to Port Arthur. Huey is not expected to live. The wound is above and penetrating the right lung. There was some talk of lynching the negro if Huey died. People have stood near the house all day to hear how he was.

Johnson is on the Arkansas side in jail.

Trouble arose because the negro pushed Huey off the sidewalk. Huey was formerly a brakeman on the Iron Mountain, and is a small man, while Johnson is a six footer.

The young man Huey will be remembered as a former resident of San Angelo, having worked for F. J. Adams at the time of the breaking out of the Spanish war. He joined the volunteer army here, becoming a member of Company E, Captain E. W. Bryan. He didn't return to San Angelo after having been mustered out. His home is in Pittsburg, Texas, and he has many friends in this city who will regret to hear of his unfortunate accident.

R. A. HALL TALKS BALL

San Angelo Banker, Lover of Good Baseball and all Around Good Fellow Talks to 'Em.

The following clipping is taken from the local page of the Fort Worth Record:

"Never before in the history of San Angelo has there been as many strangers there as is the case today," said R. A. Hall, cashier of the San Angelo National bank, who was in Fort Worth yesterday. "Without in any manner advertising the fact to any great extent, San Angelo is today attracting all sorts of attention as a health resort. I dare say that we have as many 'lungers' there as there are in San Antonio. The present hotel accommodations are barely adequate to care for the demands and all the boarding houses there are filled nearly all the time.

"San Angelo may shine as a health resort. But in a really brilliant way San Angelo comes to the front and center best as a baseball town. We have more genuine fans to the 1000 population in San Angelo than in any other city in the world. We all love the great national game. When it comes to a point where one's business must suffer, or baseball suffer, we close our place of business.

"If I do say it myself I know that we have more people in San Angelo who understand the fine points of the game and understand them better than can be found in any other place twice as large as San Angelo in or off the map. For the last three seasons we have maintained mostly by popular subscription, as good a baseball team as one ever saw in a town of less than 41,000 people. There are any number of citizens of San Angelo who have paid and paid willingly from $5 to $10 a month each toward defraying the expenses of the home team, who have also paid the $1 every time they went to see a game and they never missed seeing one.

"We have not yet gotten our 1905 team organized. When we do you can wager your last sou that we will have the finest and the best semi-professional team to be found in all Texas and the best teams in the world are to be found in this state."
